"A Time to Pray"

The day we have all long been awaiting will soon be here! Soon the anxiousness and anxiety will be a thing of the past once November 8th has come and gone! Yes, November 8th will be my 58th birthday, and I really have appreciated the extra interest shown in it this year. The media outlets have been counting down to it beginning with "100 days until November 8th!" for more than three months now. I've never heard my birthday mentioned so much in the past!

Birthdays are always a good time to reflect on the past year and life lived thus far. For the past several years as I've reflected on my birthday, I've come to the realization that I'm living in the best time of my life. This year's reflection is the same. I feel as though I'm enjoying life, I'm doing what I love to do, and I'm being what God wants me to be in the place God wants me to be. Even though some of my times for this annual reflection in past years have come on particular days when I may not have gotten enough sleep, or I've felt anxiety over a project or a major paper for a college class, or how I might be able to pay a bill or fix a problem with a vehicle, I've been able to look at the bigger picture and see these as small things within the scope of a year or a life.

That wasn't always the case. I remember times earlier in my life when a special day like a birthday could be ruined by a flat tire, a hateful comment by a childhood friend, a bill to pay with no money in my pocket, or deadlines within my job or school. The normal, natural little problems of life could cloud the picture I had of my otherwise wonderful life.

I remember spending my birthday ten years ago at a church youth leaders' retreat in the woods. I sat on the porch of a cabin early on Saturday morning and watched leaves slowly falling to the ground. I watched individual leaves giving up their battle to hang on to the branches and finally being snapped off by the wind and begin floating downward. Then I was also able to focus on the mixture of the fallen leaves coating the ground in a carpet of many colors.

It's important to be attentive to the moment at hand, to be present to the here-and-now, but it's also meaningful to step back during the difficult times to realize that little setbacks don't take away from a wonderful time of life. In fact, when you're able to look back and reflect on it all later, the difficulties may be forgotten in time, overshadowed by the many positives. Or the little changes that are forced on us may just be God's way of creating the tapestries of our lives, like thousands of individual leaves coating the ground.

In the upcoming season of gratitude and thanksgiving, take the time to be aware of what you have and how God has blessed you in all the days of your life.

Youth News

October has been a busy month!! In addition to weekly youth group meetings where the children are learning about being the 'light' and sharing Jesus' light, the Jr. high are actively involved in the Bible, and the Sr. high are digging into the Beatitudes, we have been active outside the walls of the church as well. The children and youth attending the Regional Assembly in Springfield, the Festival of Sharing in Sedalia and participated in S.O.S. Sunday, pumpkin carving at Covenant and the FCC Fall Festival. We also went trick-or-treating for the Community Food Pantry and delivered our donations, toured, and volunteered our time at the Food Pantry.

We sure have much to be thankful for, and will be preparing to do so with our first annual "Gift Back" dinner in early December. This is an opportunity the youth have embraced to share their gratitude to their families, congregation members, and community service men and women; they will be hosting a dinner and entertainment on December 9th; watch for your invitation to arrive soon!!

Purchasing ads at Mexico Lindo

By the first of next year, an ad company out of Sedalia will be installing 22 new table tops with ads for area businesses and churches, at the Mexico Lindo restaurant. During discussion at the last board meeting it was suggested that we seek funds from members who are interested in helping fund the $1,080 needed to purchase the table top ads. We have a start on the fund raising, and invite anyone who wishes to participate to write 'table top ad' in the memo portion of a check, then turn it in to the office or simply place in the offering plate. The most unique feature of the ad is the inclusion of a QR barcode. When a picture is taken of this on a smart phone, the phone will be directed to our church website.
